

Dear FCC Commissioners & Staff:

I am writing regarding the proposed changes in laws that presently require telephone companies to allow DSL access through independent ISPs.

As a happy customer of one such independent ISP, I am aghast that the FCC would consider removing my choice of providers. I receive excellent service from my ISP, and would greatly regret losing that service. Worse yet, they could be put out of business by this proposed law.

Please help to maintain free competition and consumer choice in broadband access. If this access is only available through monopolies such as telephone companies, consumers will be significantly hurt.

Sincerely,
